President’s Message

Can you believe we are entering a new decade? Do you think 2020 will be remembered by our descendants like the “Roaring Twenties” are remembered now? Often time family history researchers are busy finding that next generation on our family tree that we forget about recording our history. Have you cited and sourced facts, dates, and details for yourself? Include everyday details about the car you drive, the clothes you wear, your hairstyle, and other things that we would love to have known about our great grandparents. Look at the past decade, and year, and write down the things most remembered.

MGC-wise the past year was a very good one. I started my first year as President, in July. First off was the successful 2019 Abrams Seminar, followed by a wonderful out-of-Lansing meeting in Frankfort, and then a great 2019 MGC Fall Family History Event with Diahan Southard. The success of the November event shows that it really does take a village. My village was the wonderful board and committee members of MGC, the staff of the Archives of Michigan, and the staff of the Library of Michigan. I asked for volunteers and they didn’t disappoint. The seminar was well attended, so well attended that lunch seating was cramped. I vow to work on that for our next seminar. 2020 will bring more genealogical opportunities including the 2020 Abrams Seminar with Judy Russell. This is going to be another big event and one you won’t want to miss. Save the date of July 10th and 11th for this seminar. More details will be coming in the Spring. Our 2020 Fall Family History Event will be held November 14, 2020. Our speaker will be Sunny Morton. Look for more information on this event in late summer. Those are the big items for 2020, but don’t forget about our delegate meetings.

Our January delegate meeting will feature Jill Arnold from the Archives of Michigan. She will be giving us the latest and greatest on the new online databases at “Michiganology.” I don’t know about you, but I wouldn’t want to be Jill. Did you know that Michigan will be the number one state for online digitized archival records soon? That is a great achievement that the staff at the archives deserves recognition for. You can help make Michigan records accessible by continuing to index the Michigan Naturalization records at Family Search.

March’s delegate meeting will be on “Volunteer Recognition Ideas” for your society. I will be presenting ideas, big and small, to honor your societies volunteers. I am sure MGC will be coming up with new ideas throughout the year. If you have any ideas that you would like MGC to consider, whether it be delegate meeting speakers, projects, etc., please let me know. I wish you all a happy and healthy start to the new decade.

Sincerely,

Brenda Leyndyke,
President Michigan Genealogical Council

Grand Blanc Heritage Society and Museum has been busy this year. They added weekend hours to coincide with the Sunday Farmer's Market and were pleasantly surprised at the foot traffic—as well as having many new faces surprised at the amount of history available.

Two large screen TV’s have been purchased and will be used for presentations and programs.

‘The Real Story of Johnny Appleseed’ was presented in October. A dinner with each item on the menu containing apple, from cider to apple pie. preceded the presentation.

Osceola County Genealogical Society is Disbanding

This note is to inform you that the Osceola County Genealogical Society has officially disbanded. However, the resources the group has collected and published over its 35+ years have been turned over to the Reed City Area District Library. The RCADL has graciously received these holdings and they will soon be accessible from their collection. Highlights of these documents include the Osceola County civil war records, partial index of the 1884 and 1894 Osceola County censuses, and a detailed index of Reed City’s Woodland cemetery. Also to be housed at the RCADL is the extensive collection of Osceola County newspapers on microfilm and the ScanPro microfilm reader, all on loan from the Old Rugged Cross Historical Museum.

In the future the library will be working with volunteers to provide some assistance for genealogy research. Details will be provided at www.reedcitylibrary.org when arrangements are complete.

If you wish to access any of the genealogy holdings, please visit the RCADL or contact them 231-832-2131.

Peggy Louise Sawyer Williams

Peggy was born on November 28, 1931 to Stanley Sawyer and Wealthy Belle Guy-Sawyer in Blanchard, Michigan. She was the sixth child and youngest daughter born to this union. Peggy accepted Christ at a young age and was a longstanding member of Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Detroit, MI. She departed this life on November 26, 2019 at the age of 87. She met her husband to be, Wallace Nathaniel Williams, a native Detroiter and married on September 15, 1950. They were married for 60 years before his death in 2011. Born to the couple were three children, Rochelle, Wallace, and Nanette.

It was during the early 1980’s that Peggy began her journey as a family historian and as a genealogist. She joined the Detroit based Fred Hart Williams Genealogical Society (FHWGS). The organization was the first such organization in Michigan focused on the study of genealogical research from an African American perspective. The FHWGS is also named after Peggy’s uncle by marriage. For over 30 years, she spent her free time doing extensive research and preservation of materials on the families of: Sawyer, Guy, Williams, and other extended families. She conducted numerous genealogical workshops and was a source of inspiration to many other genealogists.

Peggy’s membership in the FHWGS led her to becoming the President of the organization in 1999, and she served in this capacity until 2005. Under her leadership, she has contributed to the success of Detroit 300, a celebration of the 300th birthday of Detroit; published Our Untold Stories: A Collection of Family History Narratives, worked in the creation of a ten panel traveling exhibit; Every Family is a History, which depicts the lives of four prominent Detroit families; and joined others in commemorating the Underground Railroad through the dedication of two monuments, Gateway to Freedom, on the Detroit side of the river, and Towers of Freedom, on the Canadian side of the river. Finally, it was during Peggy’s presidency that the Society donated the Leontine Cole Smith Collection to the Detroit Public Library, Burton Historical Collection.

Peggy spent many years in the study, research and documentation of her ancestors; and as such, was a longtime member of the Daughters of the Union Veterans (DUV). The DUV is a patriotic organization that honors the memory of soldiers who fought in the Civil War.

LDSGenealogy.com Created a Free Extensive US Genealogy Directory to Help People Easily Locate the Available Genealogy Records for a Specific, Town, County or State.

Dick Eastman · December 3, 2019 · Online Sites · No Comments

The following is an extract from an email message I (Dick) received from the folks at LDSGenealogy.com

LDSGenealogy.com has been working for 13 years to develop an extensive U.S. genealogy directory to help people to easily locate the available genealogy records for a specific town, county, or state. While we are linking to 944,000 records from 587 sources so far, we know that we could be linking to many more valuable online records, particularly smaller websites with local genealogy records.

We are inviting members of the genealogy community to review the list of sites and archives we are currently including in our U.S. genealogy records directory and contact us with suggestions on what else could be added.

LDSGenealogy.com is dedicated to helping families find their ancestors through our extensive records directory and helpful genealogy articles. The site is open to anyone interested in finding their ancestors, is privately owned, and is not an official site of FamilySearch International or The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (LDS).

This new database presents an e-book of Plymouth Colony deeds, which contains a verbatim transcription of Records of the Colony of New Plymouth in New England, Vol. III, pt 2, 1671-1673 completed in 2019 by Scott Andrew Bartley. (Although filed between 1671-1673 these deeds also refer to earlier events that span the life of Plymouth Colony, 1630-1691.) 2020 Census

It cannot be said strongly enough – EVERYONE in our state needs to be enumerated on the 2020 Census! Michigan stands to lose an estimated $1,800 per person per year in federal support for programs that use census data. These include Medicaid, nutrition assistance, highway construction and planning, Title I and Special Education Grants, Foster Care and Child Care Grants, K-12 education, Section 8 Vouchers, and Head Start/Early Start – key programs that thousands of our citizens need! As an example, the State of Michigan received more than $14 billion in 2015 from the enumeration of 2010.

Information, the timeline for the key dates, fast facts, media messages, translated materials, recordings of TV/radio ads and informational flyers and more can be accessed from this site: www.becountedmi2020.com. Regional census “Hubs” – locations for obtaining in-person information, getting questions answered and supportive resources – are located here: https://becountedmi2020.com/engage/

Please share with your neighbors, watch for advertising about the census on TV, radio, billboards and more. Your help and support in reaching out to your neighbors and friends is key to success for our state!

October is Family History Month

Editor: It is now January….what have you done since October? Here are some ideas from the Ingham County Genealogical Society newsletter

Things to do to commemorate your family’s history.

1. Get started tracing your family tree. If you’ve been thinking about it, what better time than now to get started.

2. Create a family cookbook. A cookbook of collected heirloom recipes is a great way to preserve memories of favorite meals shared with family.

3. Record family stories. Recording family stories on audiotape, videotape or in legacy journals brings family members closer together, bridges generation gaps and ensures that your family stories will be preserved for future generations.

4. Uncover your family health history. Creating a family health history can be a useful tool to aid you and your medical care provider in interpreting patterns of health, illness and genetic traits for you and your descendants.

5. Take a trip back in time. Grab a map and hop in the car for a family adventure. Check out the old family homestead, the house where you grew up or a cemetery where great-grandpa is buried.

6. Scrapbook your family heritage. A heritage scrapbook album is a wonderful way to document your family’s history and create a lasting gift for future generations.

7. Start a family website. If you or someone in your family is a web designer, by all means go to town.

8. Preserve your family pictures. Make this the month you finally get the family photos out of the shoe boxes or bags in the back of your closet. Then share some of your photo finds with the family by creating a family photo calendar or a family photo book.

9. Get the next generation involved. Most children will learn to appreciate their family history if you turn it into a detective game.

GEDmatch, the Controversial Genealogy Website has been Bought by a Forensic Genetics Firm

Dick Eastman · December 9, 2019 · Business News, Education · 2 Comments

Late breaking news: Crime scene DNA sequencing company Verogen has just acquired GEDmatch, a genealogy database credited with helping to solve some 70 rapes and murders.

Verogen, a San Diego-based company that provides equipment for high-tech sequencing of crime-scene DNA, has announced that it has acquired GEDmatch, a website that rose to fame after it led cops to the alleged Golden State Killer.

(You can read about GEDmatch’s genealogy DNA matching web site in previous articles in this newsletter by starting at: https://duckduckgo.com/?q=site%3Aeogn.com+gedmatch&t=brave&ia=web.)

GEDmatch has been caught in the crossfire of a bitter argument between genealogists who believe the site has compromised its users’ privacy and those who want to work with law enforcement to help solve violent crimes.

Although GEDmatch’s new owner is a forensic science company, it is promising a firm line on protecting users who don’t want cops to access their genetic information. “We are very committed to privacy,” Verogen CEO Brett Williams told BuzzFeed News.

You can read more in an article by Peter Aldhous in the BuzzFeed News web site at: http://bit.ly/2YxWJvG.

Gedmatch’s New Owner Statement

Verogen CEO Brett Williams, the new owner, said he will continue to offer the site for searches by law enforcement that adhere to its newly restrictive terms of service. But if police try to get a court order bypassing those terms, trying to get access to the DNA profiles of people who have requested that they remain off-limits, Verogen will fight it. He said it was about trust. If patrons agree with the terms of service and those terms are violated, there is no trust.

Local History Resources

A long-term dream of local historian, William J. Cummings has been realized at the library. The online database has been realized through the efforts of staff members as his personal files of area history are now accessible on-line on the Library’s website: www.dcl-lib.org and all for free.

The archive concentrates on the area’s early history, particularly late nineteenth century and early twentieth century material, but more recent items can also be found.

There are seven basic files for the material. An index is provided at the beginning of each file to help researchers locate information. There are many subdivisions within each index.

The files:

The Menominee Range
Dickinson County
Iron County History
Menominee County History
Florence County, Wisconsin History
Marinette County, Wisconsin History
Commercial District Designations for Archive Files

Other historical files in the Local History tab include:

Essential Steps to Find a New York State Marriage Record

Marriage is often an important life event, and an official record of this act can be treasured in and of itself. Of course, the information contained in a marriage certificate or license is also incredibly valuable to the family history researcher - depending on the time and place of the marriage, you can find deep information on both spouses (including a specific foreign birthplace if one was an immigrant), as well as deep information on parents and witnesses.

Finding a marriage record can be a real breakthrough - it may help you solve a long-standing mystery, or open up further avenues of research to explore.

Civil marriage records can be challenging to locate in New York State. Marriage records created in New York City are kept separately from those created elsewhere in New York State, and record keeping for all vital records (civil birth, marriage, and death records) was very spotty until about 1914. There are also plenty of local exceptions and idiosyncrasies that affect the research process.

The DNA Testing Companies Reply to Warrant Permitting Police Full Access to GEDmatch Database

November 8, 2020

Earlier this week I posted about a Florida judge granting a warrant to law enforcement to search GEDmatch’s full database. The court basically overruled the public DNA company’s policy on privacy. Since then both Ancestry and 23andMe—both private DNA testing companies, have issued statements.

Ancestry

Ancestry believes GEDmatch could have done more to protect the privacy of its users by challenging the warrant in court or at least pushing back on the warrant. Ancestry has emphasized that their customer’s privacy and being good stewards of their data is their highest priority. They also have a transparency report that outlines law enforcement requests for member data. They say they received no valid requests for information related to genetic information. To read their statement in full including the Coalition for Genetic Data Protection’s comments, of which Ancestry is a member see: https://blogs.ancestry.com/ancestry/2019/11/08/your-privacy-is-our-top-priority/

23andMe

23andMe also issued a statement commenting on how troubling they find GEDmatch’s lack of challenging the warrant. They question as a private database whether the Florida court’s warrant impacts them. 23andMe also has a transparency report and they have received 10 requests out of their 10 million customers and successfully challenged each one. They are also a member of the Coalition for Genetic Data Protection. Their statement may be found at: https://blog.23andme.com/news/our-stance-on-protecting-customers-data/

DNA Testing and Law Enforcement Access to DNA Databases

November 24, 2019

There has been much in the press about the recent disclosure that a Florida judge provided a warrant for law enforcement to search an entire voluntary DNA genealogy database (GEDMatch) to help solve a violent crime. That is different than the private DNA testing companies. The DNA testing companies state they are protecting your data and will fight even warrants, with FamilyTree DNA offering an opt-out option. According to a Baylor University Study, the majority of people -90 percent- favored police access to consumer DNA when it comes to murder cases. Rape is also considered a violent crime. Non-violent crimes faired about 34 percent of people in favor of police wanting the names of account holders. The privacy wonks are opposed to the warrant that was issued in Florida saying it was too broad, and are concerned it may be emulated elsewhere. The Los Angeles Times published an article on the issue today. See: https://www.latimes.com/california/story/2019-11-24/law-enforcement-dna-crime-cases-privacy

Copyright Issues

For those of us who have websites and publish materials it may have consequences due to much material on the internet is not sourced and could be copyrighted without our knowing it.

The Copyright Alternative in Small-Claims Enforcement (CASE) bill was introduced in the US House of representatives in May 2019 and passed the House 410-6 on October 22 and referred to the US Senate.

The bill as it passed the House may be read at: https://www.congress.gov/116/bills/hr2426/BILLS-116hr2426pcs.pdf. A companion bill was introduced in the US Senate, SB 1273 and passed the Senate Judiciary Committee in July.

If you use the Internet and share a copyrighted work, such as a graphic that you don’t own, you may be subject to a $30,000 fine. Interestingly, the copyrighted work will automatically be eligible for the damages stipulated in the bill even if the owner has not registered the item. The bill proposes the creation of a voluntary small claims board within the U.S. Copyright Office — providing copyright owners with an alternative to the existing process of bringing copyright claims (including infringement and misrepresentation under 512(f)) to federal court. The goal is giving graphic artists, photographers, and other content creators a different pathway toward receiving damages if their works are infringed. Concern is that potential infringers have found the internet an easy way to copy and paste creative works from artists. Internet advocacy and civil rights groups (ACLU and Electronic Frontier Foundation) have warned that a system like the one proposed by the CASE Act could cost the average internet user thousands for simply sharing a meme or lead to encroachments on their First Amendment rights.

If legislation provides a new means for copyright owners to file infringement claims; for copyright users to adjudicate declarations of non-infringement; for owners and users to submit claims related to Section 512(f) of the Digital Millennium Copyright Act; and for would-be defendants to submit counterclaims and legal defenses, such as fair use. The bill would establish a Copyright Claims Board within the Copyright Office to hear these claims—submission to the Copyright Claims Board is voluntary. The Librarian of Congress would appoint three Copyright Claims Officers to preside over the tribunal. The bill limits damages to US $15,000 per work, and $30,000 total per claim. If copyright owners do not register the work in accordance with Section 412 of the Copyright Act, "statutory damages may not exceed $7,500 per work infringed, or a total of $15,000 in any one proceeding. The newly created tribunals receives the complaints and will issue a “notice” to the party being sued—but we do not know from the current legislation the form the notice will take. One must respond to the notice in a tight time table.

As genealogists we may find some of the provisions of concern. Some genealogists may have made copies of photographs for their websites or other materials.

Library of Michigan Update!

Greetings everyone from the Library of Michigan.

2019 is winding down and there have been many displays and events at your Library of Michigan. The Jim Harrison exhibit will close at the end of December so there is still plenty of time. Please stop by and examine the display items in our Lake Erie Room on the second floor. It is a great collection of personal items and photographs.

Stay tuned to our website early next year for the announcement of the next round of Michigan Notable Books. They will make great additions to any reading club. Also, there have been plenty of additions to our collections. Below are just a few of them.

Said and Done June 1927. Muskegon High School Magazine.

Adventures in Contentment by Michigan Author David Grayson

Please search our catalog, www.answercat.org, to view our holdings. We continually process and add items to our collections.

Library staff are still busy visiting Michigan libraries this year and will continue to do so into next year. Staff have also been busy presenting at different genealogical societies and libraries. The most recent ones are: Flint Genealogical Society, Albion District Library, Northville Genealogical Society and several more. Next year, staff will be presenting at Rochester Hills Public Library, Pontiac Public Library, and Salem South Lyon. Just to name a few. If you have an interest in having us speak about our collections for family history research at your society meeting, please contact us at librarian@michigan.gov. If you have other questions, please call us at 517-335-1477.

Have a wonderful holiday season.
With the holidays upon us, it is a perfect time to reflect on the past year and look ahead to 2020.

2019 was another successful programming year. With both the 2019 Abrams Foundation Family History Seminar, featuring Tina Beaird, and the MGC Fall Family History Event, featuring Diahan Southard, 2019 was a banner year for events and educational opportunities here at the Archives. Thank you to the Michigan Genealogical Council for your assistance throughout the year and be sure to mark your calendars for the 2020 Abrams Seminar (July 10-11, 2020); we’ll be hosting Judy Russell, “The Legal Genealogist!” The MGC fall event is scheduled for November 14, 2020 with Sunny Morton. We’ll see you in 2020! This year also saw the launch of our new web site Michiganology (https://michiganology.org). Michigan death records (1897-1952), state census records, Civil War records, and more, can all be found for free at Michiganology. Looking ahead to 2020, Archives staff will continue to work on improving the site’s search experience and adding new content.

The Archives of Michigan continues to add new source material to our holdings, particularly local government records. Most of these original records are not available online, so even more reason to visit us here onsite! New archival collections include:

- Huron County Circuit Court Records, 1938-1992 / RG 2019-122
- Alpena County Veteran’s Affairs Office Records, ca. 1917-2010 / RG 2019-109

Archives staff continues to work with local probate officials throughout the staff to transfer their historic records to the Archives of Michigan. The list above will continue to grow in the coming days and months.

In addition to the original source material above, the Archives continues to add new published material to the Abrams Foundation Historical Collection. New additions to the Collection include:

- Early Land Sales & Purchases, Lake County, Indiana, 1837-1857 / Northwest Indiana Genealogical Society / 2006
- Pennsylvania Divorces: Dauphin County, 1788-1867 and York County, 1790-1860 / Eugene Throop / 2013
- The Reunions of the Jenks Family of Oakland County, Michigan, 1911-1927 / Evelyn Roselia Seymour Jenks / 2019

The Archives thanks our generous donors, supporters, and friends, including, of course, the Abrams Foundation and the Michigan Genealogical Council.

As always, please contact us at archives@michigan.gov with any questions about the Archives and our collections, services, or digitization projects.
Michiganology.org database continues to be updated. The 1942 and 1943 Michigan death certificates are available. I find I get the best results by using advanced search function.

Be sure to give a date range rather than an exact date. For example, if you are looking for a 12/15/1942 death certificate, use the range of 12/14/1942 to 12/16/1942.

Naturalization Record Indexing

Are you looking for ways you or your society can give back to the genealogy community? Indexers are still needed for the Michigan Naturalization Indexing Project at Family Search. Use these cold winter days to index a batch or 100!

Probate Record Scanning

Also, the archives and Family Search are in the process of scanning Michigan Probate Records. If interested in helping with this project, please contact archives@michigan.gov. The work that you would be doing would be getting the records ready for scanning and returning them to their packets after the scanning is done. Family Search personnel does the scanning.

Walt Disney’s Role in WWII Propaganda
by Allison DePrey Singleton

The Genealogy Center's Genealogy Gems, History Tidbits, Allen County Public Library

When World War II broke out in Europe, the world was horrified that another war could occur again so soon after the Great War. When it finally reached the United States with the bombing of Pearl Harbor in 1941, the country rose to the challenge with its full military might. As a part of the war effort to rally public support, artists created propaganda through a multitude of mediums, including posters, comics, radio shows, and animation. Let’s explore how this effort affected the Walt Disney Studios and the films that came out of this time period.

The day after the attack on Pearl Harbor, 500 U.S. Army troops marched into Walt Disney Studios, where they stayed for eight months. Their mission was not to take over the animation studio but to protect the nearby Lockheed aircraft plant from being bombed. In fact, artists from the Walt Disney Studios along with those from other studios camouflaged the aircraft plant to make it look like a suburb from the sky.

(At the Lockheed plant, Col. John F. Ohmer began implementing his grand illusion. Airfields and parking lots were painted green and lined with plants to make them look like fields of alfalfa. The main factory was covered with a canopy of chicken wire, netting and painted canvas to blend in with the surrounding grass. And fake trees were erected with spray-painted chicken feathers for leaves, some painted green to represent new growth and some brown to represent decaying patches.)

Soon afterward, Disney put his 550 employees to work on propaganda films for each of the branches of the armed forces. The success of these educational films led to their release to the general public as well. The output of the studio was staggering. Before the war, it averaged just 27,000 feet of film per year. In the spring of 1942, the Navy alone requested Disney to produce 90,000 feet of film within three months. By March 1945, the studio had created more than 400,000 feet of film, the length of which would have created a movie lasting 68 hours.

Among these films was a government-commissioned series produced by the famed director Frank Capra called ‘Why We Fight.’ It featured such titles as ‘Prelude to War’ (1942), ‘The Nazis Strike’ (1943), ‘Divide and Conquer’ (1943), ‘The Battle of Britain’ (1943), ‘The Battle of Russia’ (1943), ‘The Battle of China’ (1944), and ‘War Comes to America’ (1945). You can watch the series online through the Internet Archive website:

Disney’s production of ‘The New Spirit’ was commissioned by the U.S. Treasury in order to win public support for the levying of income tax

It was followed by a second film, ‘The Spirit of ‘43” on the same topic

https://urldefense.com/v3/__https://archive.org/details/TheSpiritOf43_56__;!ioFpBMP7JUJnWp3FhNTDxZ04yWJ-4FE3pqFwwIiR1GdZC7EDWqmc7J7e3fcLwB-2AOwj3elw$

A fascinating look at other propaganda is the short film, ‘Education for Death - The Making of a Nazi.’ Created at the request of the U.S. Government as an anti-German film for soldiers and the general public, it showed the upbringing of a child who becomes a German soldier and how the children are taught not to have empathy or morals.

These films offer a small look into the propaganda that the United States had put out during World War II. Most of them are available online to stream through such websites as Internet Archive. You can find lists of the films made by Disney during the war on these websites:

Enjoy this bit of history as we acknowledge the 78th Anniversary of the Bombing of Pearl Harbor. Everyone played their part in the war effort, even Walt Disney.

Editing Indexes on Family Search.org

FamilySearch is working diligently to make name editing available on historical records. You can access this feature if there is a blue “Edit” box next to a name.

Be sure to view the document as more information may be available.

1. When reviewing a record compare what is written in the index box to what appears in the image. At this time on familysearch, the record must have both an index and an image to edit.
2. Zoom in on the image to read it carefully.
3. If you see a blue Edit link next to a name you can edit it for accuracy as needed. Click the link, then enter a revised name and select a reason for the change. You can also add a note, if you feel the change requires more information. Click save once you are finished.

Ancestry.com Adds New Holocaust Collections

Millions of Holocaust-era records are newly searchable online for free in partnership with the Arolsen Archives. The landing page launched with two collections:

- ‘Europe, Registration of Foreigners and German Persecutes (1939-1947)’ has nearly 10 million records of those living in Germany who were persecuted by public institutions, social securities and companies. It may include information on related deaths and burials.
- ‘Africa, Asia and Europe, Passenger Lists of Displaced Persons (1946-1971)’. This list launched with more than a million records from lists of displaced persons, in most cases traveling from a resettlement camp to a final destination.

More records are expected to come online in the future.

1939 Register for England and Wales

The register was used to produce civilian’s wartime identity cards and ration books beginning January 1940. The government used it for military deployment and population evacuations. Information includes name, birthdate, address, gender, marital status and occupation.

- The Registration district and sub-district field can help track down other records for your ancestor. Use birth and marital status to search for civil records.
- The “See Instructions” column may have additional information that can be followed up on for a person.
- Information has been redacted for people who may be still living to protect their privacy. The version of the register on Ancestry.co.uk will update annually to show records that have been opened during the past year.
